Small conical, re-polished caged lamp with junction box

€320 + tax

These lamps were produced as of 1924 in a wide range of different designs and are the embodiment of twentieth-century industrial charm. Their simple, elegant appearance belies their extremely robust design. They were used in power stations, on tank farms and in other buildings containing hazardous materials. Featuring an elaborate splash-proof design, these lamps comprise die-cast aluminium casing fitted with heatproof, pressure-resistant safety glass and a steel protective cage. The E27 ceramic socket inside is spring-mounted to protect the bulb from sharp knocks. To recondition these lamps, the body and cage have been finely sandblasted and re-polished. This version comes with aluminium junction box. However, we also usually have plenty of unrestored lamps of this type in stock.
