Small solid red brass pendant spotlight

€430 + tax

Used as emergency lighting, these lights were suspended from the highest points of factory ceilings, making them very rare and difficult to salvage. They were built in the 1920s and 1930s to a typically simple design influenced by the Bauhaus.

These beautiful lamps have become so rare that we decided they needed a comeback! So we discovered a small, family-run foundry nearby which specializes in restorations and reproductions – and they're now making faithful imitations of these lights out of aluminium and bronze in small batches.

The red brass dome and shade are extremely robust and impact-resistant. Although re-polished to a high sheen, note that they still contain traces of wear such as scratches and notches. These pendant spotlights come with a ceramic socket for E27 bulbs.

Please note: You can choose your own cord color and length!
